

Alexander Creek Newsletter

June 2023

Dumb Jokes

Years ago I was dating this attractive woman. I was really fond of her and thought this is the woman I want to marry. That was until I found out she had nine toes. You see, I had lack toes intolerance. LOL! Please, no rotten tomatoes.

Recipe

Easy Lemon Dessert

This is a great dessert that can be made with non-fat/fat-free/sugar free ingredients, if desired. Garnishing with in-season berries adds a nice pop of extra color. It can also be doubled easily, using an 8x8 dish vs pie crust as an option.

1 ready-made graham cracker crust or make your own

1-3oz box lemon jello gelatin (NOT pudding)

1/4 cup boiling water

2-6oz containers lemon yogurt (NOT the 'whipped' kind)

Whipped topping such as Cool Whip or Reddi Wip (optional)

Dissolve jello in water; cool. Add yogurt. Pour into crust. Chill till set. Serve with whipped topping, if using. Refrigerate leftovers.

Spring Maintenance in Alexander Creek

The paving project for the "Alleyways" has been completed.

Ash trees damaged by borers have been removed

A water hydrant has been installed at the shelter house. That will allow trees to be watered regularly. One tree is dead and one more may or may not be able to be saved.

Grounds around the shelter house was cleaned up. Grass seeds were cast a week later by the home builder. Irrigating using portable sprinkler heads is a lost cause for aiding growth of the grass seed.

Moving Ahead

A designer for shelter house grounds improvement has been picked out. The Board will decide initial features and then get a printout to share with residents for comments and opinions on the design and project cost.

The irrigation system that waters the front berm and plants in the island needs some repair. I'm not sure how much needs to be done to operate reliably, but that will be analyzed soon. Once up and running some cleanup will be done in the island. There are dead plants in the island and some plants just add nothing to the appearance.

Lost and Found

A key for the mail box cluster at Creekview and Cold Water was found weeks ago. A previous email was sent out, but no takers. Second notice.

Also found keys to someone's house at same location.